

Contents

Foreword by the Editor	1
Amnesty means oblivion: The politics of “pardon” in post-communist Romania Ștefan-Sebastian Maftai	3
Virtuous justice, and its price in truth in post-dictatorial Argentina Claudia Hilb	13
Between the signs of transition’s justice Erik Doxtader	21
Big Brother’s shadow: History, justice, and the political imagination in post-1989 Poland Cezar M. Ornatowski	31
J. M. Coetzee: Reluctant public intellectual Reingard Nethersole	41
Scholars and intellectuals in transition: on the social position of culture, science and intellectual work in postsocialist Slovenia Vlado Kotnik	53
The melancholy of the forgotten: a Lyotardian affection Sergio Alloggio	63
Les défis de la légitimité politique: L’État postcommuniste à l’épreuve de la société Ciprian Mihali	73
“Untold suffering and injustice” in the best of all possible worlds Emilian Cioc	83
Le global en ses horizons: En finir avec le post-religieux et le post-sécularisme Patrick Michel	93
Four easy pieces and a coda: Rhetoremes of justice Philippe-Joseph Salazar	103
Début paper : The liberation legacy: literalist and normative torchbearers battle for the post-society economy Garreth Bloor	109